In at least one respect, Barre's publicity campaign has already attained success; it has stirred imitators.

The resignation of McCombs as chairman of the Democratic national committee means the withdrawal of a contrary element of the Wilson pulling team.

Addison county can show a little progressive spirit by getting back to that project to have an Addison county hospital at some prominent place, perhaps at Middlebury. The project was started some time ago but was allowed to become quiescent for a considerable period, being now revived with considerable energy and with a fair start in money subscriptions to finance the undertaking. There surely is money enough, and there ought to be spirit enough, in Addison county to enable the promoters to carry through their effort to a very successful culmination.

Before a sense of relief from tension is allowed to pass over the United States because of belief that Germany will accede to the demands of the Washington government concerning submarine warfare, it is well to remember that oftentimes during the past 14 months reassuring reports have come out of Berlin, only to be followed by cold, hard facts which dashed the hopes of American people. There seems to be more basis back of the present rising tide of hope inasmuch as the early intimations came from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, after his conversation with the German foreign office; but it will not be time to allow full vent to optimism until we get the representations in concrete form. Therefore, let the ebullitions of over-optimistic Americans subside until the formal reply from the Berlin government has been received. We have learned our lesson of disappointment over what Germany has for us in this matter of submarine warfare, or at least we should have learned our lesson long before this time. Wait for the actual promise.

VERMONT IS LOSING.

Oddly enough, the war is depleting Vermont's population. At first thought this situation might seem to be impossible; but after consideration of the matter and after a chance to peruse the various newspapers of the state, it comes home as a sure enough fact. The situation comes about in this way. The war's demand has far exceeded the supply of war materials of the countries which are engaged in the great conflict; the factories of those countries are not capable of turning out materials fast enough to meet the demands for their consumption. Naturally, therefore, such of the belligerents as were possessed of the command of the sea, or their allies, turned their attention to the United States as the greatest neutral producing nation and sought to secure a new source of supply. Their desires have been met in large measure, and as a result factories all over the eastern section of the United States, reasonably near to shipping ports, are busily engaged in producing ammunition, shells, and such material to be sold to the entente allies, who happen to have control of the seas. These factories are met with such growing demands as the fury of the war waxes stronger that they are unable to produce fast enough. So they work overtime. But even overtime is not sufficient. So they are building large factories. This necessitates the employment of many more men. The cities and the territory in the immediate vicinity of the factories have not enough idle mechanics fully to man the producing machines. Therefore, they are forced to turn to more distant fields in search of men. In that search they have come to Vermont; and Vermont towns and cities are being stripped of their young men in a manner that is likened to the great exodus to the California gold regions in 1849. There is scarcely a town of any prominence in Vermont that has not sent its representative, or representatives, to work in munitions factories. Some of them will come back; others will remain in their new locations when the rush is over and the huge factories become deserted through lack of orders to fill. But in any event Vermont loses, because there is no counter-inrush to the state. It is extremely unfortunate that Vermont has not enough along industrial lines to resist this temporary lure of high wages in distant places.

EAST BETHEL

Charles Lamphere, who has been working in Websterville, has returned home. The schools have resumed the spring term with the same teachers—Miss Annie Fowler at Spooner corners and Miss Ethel Buck in the village. The village school has the same scholars, with two additional ones, but Miss Fowler's school has shrunk down to eight scholars. This school is situated near the quarries and formerly consisted of 28 pupils. James Tancrot and Aristio Ortigari are moving away, having been laid off from work at the quarries. Frank Spaulding has also finished work at the quarries. R. H. Buck is having a lot of fish lumber sawed at M. D. Brown's mill. It is to go to Quincy, Mass. Horace Ballou, who was killed by the cars in Royalton last Wednesday, was well known here. The spring rains are playing havoc with the hill roads here. A very little labor in turning the water for the past two weeks would have saved a large expense when the road machine comes later on.

WATERBURY

Last Saturday afternoon in a closely contested game, the baseball team of the Waterbury high school won its first game from Richmond high school by a score of 10 to 9. In the second inning, Eldridge, the first baseman for W. H. S., sprained his ankle while going after a grounder and was replaced by O'Brien. Up to the last of the ninth inning, it looked as if Richmond had the game sailed, but then, with one out and two strikes on the next man, the whole Richmond team went to pieces and Waterbury scored four runs in quick succession, winning the game.

EAST MONTPELIER

Cat and Hen Both Want Care of Kittens.

One of the most unkind of mixups in these strenuous times, was called to the attention of your village corner by Mrs. Charles Levene of east hill. In one end of a manger a hen took possession and began to store her eggs. When the count was right, incubation started. A house cat and two kittens have located in the other end of the manger. For some reason best known to the hen, she has adopted those kittens and covers them with as much care as she does her eggs. When the mother cat calls to her family to come home, war is declared, and the cat is forced to retire with some loss of fur. The only way the kittens get anything to eat is by asking to be excused for a little while. What may happen when the chicks get round is being watched for with much interest.

WHY DANDRUFF

CAUSES BALDNESS

Some Facts That All Men and Women Should Learn Before It Is Too Late.

Get rid of dandruff if you have it and the sooner the better. Dandruff causes baldness by choking the pores of the scalp so that the hair roots do not obtain proper nourishment.

There is one delightful hair tonic so compounded that besides immediately ending itching scalp and quickly stopping hair from falling, will remove every particle of dandruff after just a few applications.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of Parisian Sage, a hair beautifier, tonic and scalp invigorator that as every druggist knows always produces results. Thousands of women use it because nothing else makes the hair so soft, abundant, radiantly beautiful and fascinating. Red Cross Pharmacy always guarantees Parisian Sage.—Adv.
